Everything about H-ON showed first class quality from the moment they came to visit us to listen to our requirements.

Using their extensive experience has been crucial to our company and provided good guidance as to optimal ways forward.

They provided "Duferdofin-Nucor" a gap analysis service which helped us draw up a machine safety project "roadmap", considering the best cost and time effective options.

The end report, results and the time scale in which this was achieved, further confirmed H-ON's quality of service. Their engineers are really helpful, highly knowledgeable and very competent.

As a business we have found them to be professional at all times.
